

Bringing new value to society with +TAKUMA

Founder Tsunekichi Takuma invented the first boiler to be produced entirely in Japan by bringing expertise and technology to a product that had to be imported until that time.

By passing down this philosophy over time and augmenting it with Takuma's technology, we continue to create products with new value today.

Going forward, we will provide that value to customers through plants that take advantage of the proprietary technologies we have developed since our founding in areas such as combustion, waste treatment, and water treatment.
